Week 18: Tall birthwort (Aristolochia altissima - Aristolochiaceae).
Aristolochia altissima flowers have a specific method of pollination, consisting of a tube-like structure with a slippery surface that serves as a trap for particular flies. Trapped insects can't get out at once, thereby increasing the likelihood of contact with pollen. The flower eventually releases the captured insects, allowing them to carry pollen to other plants.
 Certain Aristolochia species have been used in traditional medicine to induce labor, alleviate menstrual cramps, and treat other gynecological issues. Hence, the name "birthwort."
 On campus, a small Aristolochia altissima climber can be found at the Mother Tree's base. Look on the backside of the main trunk.

As part of the school's 150th-anniversary celebrations, the curator of Brummana High School Botanical Garden will dedicate a section of our weekly bulletin to highlight 150 plants that are currently flourishing on our campus. Every week, one plant will be profiled for its scientific and cultural significance. Our ultimate goal is to shed some light on the rich and diverse plant collection present on our campus, because, as the legendary naturalist Lord David Attenborough once said, "No one will protect what they don't care about; and no one will care about what they have never experienced."

COMMUNITY

On Saturday May 20, 2023, the Old Scholars Association had the pleasure of participating at the annual BHS May Festival that took place on campus for the whole day. The OSA kiosk was quite popular, and we had many visitors pass by, purchase OSA merchandise and take photos with the OSA team.

Among those who visited our kiosk were Old Scholars from various classes, members of the OSA Administrative Committee, Principal David Gray, celebrities and future Old Scholars.
